Prestonfield Golf Club

The James Braid designed Prestonfield Golf Club is situated below the stunning Arthur's Seat and Salisbury Crags in the heart of the city of Edinburgh. The course provides an excellent challenge with its par 70 rolling layout. At over 6200yds in length there are many testing par 4s that can vary greatly depending on the strength and direction of the wind. The contours of the fairway and mature trees make it one of the finest inland courses to play and enjoy.

Over 34,000 rounds of golf are played annually at our course by members, visitors and guests. This provides an excellent opportunity for your business to be highly visible to the local community and our visitors from all over East/Central Scotland and further afield.

Our Club

Founded in 1920 Prestonfield Golf Club is an 18 hole course which nestles in the lee of the volcanic mass of Arthur's seat. It is bound by Holyrood Park and the bird sanctuary of Duddingston Loch to the north, the Braid Burn and Peffermill Mansion House to the east and the grounds of Prestonfield House to the south. James Braid, one of the most famous names in golf course design, created the present layout.

In 2016 Prestonfield was recognised by Scottish Golf as Clubgolf Junior Club of the Year. This is in recognition of the fantastic work we have been doing coaching over 100 children per week. Many of these children are from the local community and are building a foundation of future members. Prestonfield Golf Club is leading the way in Scotland.

As a members' club we provide a warm welcome and a great golfing experience to a wide variety of visitors, guests and over 800 members.

The club house offers every facility and our Professional has a well stocked shop as well as a friendly team to welcome and help golfers at all levels.
